Jet Source Appoints David Lohmeyer as Director of Aircraft Services

Industry Specialist to Drive Strategy for Company's Maintenance and Avionics Departments

Carlsbad, Calif. — (March 28, 2007) — Jet Source, a full-service aviation firm, headquartered at the McClellan-Palomar Airport in Carlsbad, Calif., today announced that David Lohmeyer has joined the company as Director of Aircraft Services. In his role, Lohmeyer will lead the Maintenance and Avionics departments at Jet Source to initiate new business opportunities, while ensuring continued safety through compliance of company policies and FAA regulations. Further, Lohmeyer plans to incorporate his knowledge and experience regarding Lean/Six Sigma to create new industry standards that will support Jet Source's business goals.

Lohmeyer brings more than 13 years of corporate aviation expertise, as well as two years of experience in the airline industry. Prior to joining Jet Source, Lohmeyer spent nearly five years as general manager of a maintenance facility for Flight Options, where he oversaw the daily operations of Maintenance, Avionics, and Parts. Lohmeyer holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Aviation Management.

"David's wealth of experience in aviation, innate leadership capabilities and overall passion for this industry make him an excellent addition to our team, especially as the company transitions into our next stage of growth," said Frank Milian, president and COO at Jet Source.

In addition to celebrating its 10-year anniversary this spring, Jet Source plans to open a new, state-of-the-art facility in Henderson, Nevada, which will consist of two 35,000 square foot hangars and an executive terminal. Set to open in 2008, the new second location will offer aircraft charter, aircraft management, maintenance, avionics, and aircraft sales/acquisitions.

“Jet Source is recognized as one of the leading maintenance and avionics repair stations across the country, as well as the leading FBO in its region,” said Lohmeyer. “It’s exciting to be part of an organization with such a strong track record of excellence and I look forward to working with both customers and employees to continue that level of success.”
